Communication skills

Every position and job in my career required a kind of communication ability with different target groups from university students to decision makers both in the national and international working environment. In the process of the development of my communication skills the most useful ones were the ones when I had to work abroad (Vilnius and Belgrade) as a Team Leader, and had to co-ordinate the project implementation process with different local and international experts and other stakeholders. As a result of different partnership programmes during the last 15 years I have visited several protected areas and Natura 2000 sites in Poland.
