4.3. Management System / Management Plan

4.3.1 - Management System

Ownership of the properties is shared between public bodies (national, provincial, and communal) and individuals, the majority being in public ownership. Supervision and management is in the competence of the appropriate agencies (Ministries/Departments of Culture and/or Education of the six autonomous communities). Systematic inspections of the sites are undertaken by professionals (employed variously by provincial archaeological services, state parks, or municipalities) in Catalonia, Aragón, and Valencia, and by volunteers in Andalusia and Murcia; a similar system is currently being set up in Castilla-La Mancha. Following the promulgation of the 1985 Law, work began on the creation of an exhaustive survey and inventory of rock-art sites, first in Catalonia and then in the other autonomous communities. This took into account descriptive aspects relating to subject matter, techniques, and environmental factors along with evaluations of state of conservation. A permanent intercommunity council for rock art has been set up, with the full backing of all six autonomous communities, to study the archaeology, protection, and conservation of the sites. Where rock-art sites are accessible to the public, plans are in existence or in preparation in cultural or natural parks and municipalities for the provision of interpretation centres, either independently or in association with existing museums, and guiding services.

A formally constituted steering group or similar management committee has been set up in 1998 to guide the management of the site. The functions are: to propose intervention models with regard to the documentation, protection, restoration, conservation, signage and dissemination of rock art; to promote meetings of a technical and/or scientific nature concerning the documentation, conservation and dissemination of rock art as well as the attendance of national and international meetings on rock art; to draw up reports and to draft projects concerning the rock art of the Mediterranean arc and to carry out diagnostic work on its state of conservation. The management of the site is under traditional protective measures or customary law.
