Statement of Outstanding Universal Value

Brief synthesis

The Works of Antoni Gaudí is a serial property consisting of seven buildings by the architect Antoni Gaudí (1852–1926) located in Barcelona and its surrounding areas. The property attests to the exceptional creative contribution of this architect to the development of architecture and construction technology in the 19th and early 20th centuries. The Park Güell, the Palau Güell, the Casa Milà-La Pedrera, the Casa Vicens, the Nativity Façade and the Crypt of the Sagrada Família, the Casa Batlló, and the Crypt of the Colònia Güell reflect an eclectic, very personal style to which Gaudí gave free rein in the field of architecture, as well as in the design of gardens, sculptures, and indeed all the arts.

The Works of Antoni Gaudí is an exceptional and outstanding creative contribution to the architectural heritage of modern times. His work is rooted in the particular character of the period, drawing on the one hand from traditional Catalan patriotic sources and on the other from the technical and scientific progress of modern industry. Gaudí's work is a remarkable reflection of all these different facets of society and has a unique and singular character. In fact, his works are particularly associated with Modernisme, and in this sense, Gaudí can be regarded as the most representative and outstanding of the Modernista architects.

Gaudí's work is an exceptional creative synthesis of several 19th-century artistic schools, such as the Arts and Crafts movement, Symbolism, Expressionism, and Rationalism, and is directly associated with the cultural apogee of Catalonia. Gaudí also presaged and influenced many forms and techniques of 20th-century Modernism.

Criterion (i): The work of Antoni Gaudí represents an exceptional and outstanding creative contribution to the development of architecture and building technology in the late 19th and early 20th centuries.

Criterion (ii): Gaudí's work exhibits an important interchange of values closely associated with the cultural and artistic currents of his time, as represented in e/ Modernisme of Catalonia. It anticipated and influenced many of the forms and techniques that were relevant to the development of modern construction in the 20th century.

Criterion (iv): Gaudí's work represents a series of outstanding examples of the building typology in the architecture of the early 20th century, residential as well as public, to the development of which he made a significant and creative contribution.

Integrity

In general, all the component parts of the property enjoy a high degree of integrity and have retained a good relationship with their surroundings, whether urban or natural.

The Palau Güell, originally a family home, is now a cultural and tourist facility that retains its architectural integrity, form, and original decoration. The Park Güell is still used as a public park and green space, the purpose for which it was designed; now combining this with tourist and cultural use, while conserving the original features in their entirety. The Casa Milà-La Pedrera and the Casa Batlló, a pre-existing building remodelled by Gaudí, largely conserve their original design as apartment buildings, combining this in present day with other uses, such as offices and cultural and tourist facilities. Some monuments, such as the Casa Vicens, have retained over time both their physical appearance and their use as family homes. The Crypt of the church of the Colònia Güell is the only component to have been built as part of a larger project for the church. Subsequently, a temporary roof was erected over the Crypt. The present roof maintains the overall integrity of the Crypt as constructed by Gaudí. It also currently retains its use as the church of the Colònia Güell. In the case of the Sagrada Família, the integrity of the part built by Gaudí is intact. Furthermore, its current function as a church corresponds with the use originally intended, maintaining its religious symbolism and being a landmark for the city of Barcelona.

Authenticity

In general, all the buildings by Antoni Gaudí that are part of the serial property possess a fair degree of authenticity. Restoration works have reflected these qualities in the conditions for interventions.

The Palau Güell has undergone a general restoration to improve its conservation and enhance its cultural use, highlighting the authenticity of its architectural and decorative features. The Park Güell has undergone a variety of minor and structural restorations to repair damage caused by its intensive public use and exposure to the elements. The Casa Milà-La Pedrera has been comprehensively restored to improve its state of conservation, highlight certain unique features such as the roof, attics, “noble” floor, etc., and to make it more suitable for cultural uses and public visits. The Casa Vicens has undergone only minor conservation and restoration work. The Casa Batlló has been restored to improve its state of conservation and enhance its use for cultural purposes.

At the Crypt of the Colònia Güell, the structure has been restored, preserving and consolidating Gaudí’s Crypt, substituting the stairs and the deteriorating temporary roof. The new roof is based on modern design criteria and does not interfere with visibility from the surrounding area. There were also structural problems, due to the fact that the columns were not receiving the load they were originally designed to take. Nonetheless, the work by Gaudí in the Crypt has been correctly restored and has not lost its originality.

In the case of the Sagrada Família, the authenticity of the part built by Gaudí – the Nativity Façade and the Crypt – has been preserved in terms of its material, form, and workmanship.

Construction work on the church is continuing at the present time. The work originally performed by Gaudí must be considered in the context of the overall project that he himself had planned, which is now close to being brought to completion in accordance with the evidence and guidelines that have been drawn up and scientifically verified.

Protection and management requirements

Protection legislation includes Law 16/1985 of 25 June concerning Spanish Historical Heritage, Law 9/1993 of 30 September concerning Catalan Cultural Heritage, and Decree 276/2005 concerning Territorial Commissions for the Cultural Heritage. Legislation at the municipal level, including the Metropolitan General Plan, the Special Plan to protect the architectural heritage of the city of Barcelona, and the Special Plan to protect the architectural heritage of the Colònia Güell residential district, grants additional protection.

In terms of management, there are numerous authorities involved in decision making at the levels of the State, the Autonomous Community, and the municipality. Similarly, ownership is varied: Park Güell is owned by the Barcelona City Council, Palau Güell by the Barcelona Provincial Council, Casa Milà-La Pedrera by the Fundació Catalunya - La Pedrera, and Casa Vicens is private property. Casa Batlló is owned by Inmobiliaria Casa Batlló SL, Sagrada Família by the Board of the Sagrada Família, and the Crypt of the Colònia Güell by Colònia Güell Consortium. Management of the property also has to reconcile diverse uses such as public garden (Park Güell), culture and tourism, and religious and residential use.

The Territorial Commission for the Cultural Heritage of Barcelona and the Territorial Commission of the city of Barcelona are ultimately responsible for the management and administration of the inscribed property, in accordance with the legislative and regulatory framework. In addition, different component parts have specific conservation, maintenance, and master plans to address particular conditions. The management of the property will need to respond effectively to the increased pressure from the growing number of visitors and continue its work on the protection and restoration of the structural and decorative elements, with attention paid to the behaviour and decay processes of the materials used (iron, ceramics, etc.).

4.7.9 - Please comment as necessary on how the factors selected as relevant in 4.7 are affecting the property either negatively or positively

In Casa Batlló, due to climate change, the nature elements affecting the property can change depending on the year, but the trend in any case is decreasing. The Colònia Güell Crypt has problems of water and humidity ingress caused by the characteristics of the construction materials as well as by the fact that it is an unfinished work. In the Park Güell, the temperature affects the rate of plant development. It is a priority to control pests that can affect some of the species.

It is necessary to improve properly the management of the changes of uses at buffer zones in coordination with all stakeholders. The Crypt at the Colònia Güell is the temple of the local Catholic community, and therefore has the original intended religious use. The Crypt is also used to hold concerts of classical music and choral singing. At the Park Güell, there is a gentrification process in the neighborhood and some population is leaving.

It is necessary to improve properly the management of the security at buffer zones in coordination with all stakeholders. The Park Güell security and access control improvement plan is being implemented. The works have been carried out since the last quarter of 2022 with the aim of establishing a more secure and modern control of the new Park Güell entrances with high security gates and cameras to be able to activate their operation remotely.

In the years 1989, 2009 and 2020 there were very strong winds that felled trees (pines) around the Crypt at the Colònia Güell. Although they did not affect the building, it did affect the image of its relationship and integration with the natural environment. When replacing the pines, we have taken into account that in cases of very strong wind, the trees that fall cannot damage the building.

The serial property does not have a management plan, but most of its components do have such a plan, which has a positive impact on the conservation of the OUV. Furthermore, the management system implies a coordination between the serial property manager (Dept. of Culture of the Catalan Government) and the individual managers, mainly through the Gaudi Council. This management system has also a positive impact on the conservation of the OUV.

5.2. Protective Measures

5.2.1 - Protective designation (legal, regulatory, contractual, planning, institutional and/or traditional).

The laws on cultural heritage applied by the various public authorities in managing their sites and monuments make up a complex body of legislation on five different levels (international, supranational, national, autonomous community and municipal).

The international and supranational legislation, that is the UNESCO Convention Concerning the Protection of World Cultural and Natural Heritage and the Council of Europe Convention for the Protection of the Architectural Heritage of Europe, is already well known. It only remains to say that Spain signed these treaties in 1982 and 1985 respectively and that their stipulations are incorporated in state and autonomous community legislation.

The legislation applicable in Spain is briefly described below, firstly at a state level, then at the level of the autonomous community and lastly at a municipal level.

This section includes not only specific legislation on cultural heritage but also tourism-related legislation, which, because of its purpose, is regarded as an extremely valuable tool in conserving and raising awareness of our heritage.

State legislation

Law 16/85 of 24 June 1985 on Spanish Historic Heritage states that Spanish Historic Heritage is made up of buildings and objects of artistic, historical, palaeontological, archaeological, ethnographic, scientific or technical interest. Documentary and bibliographical heritage and archaeological sites and zones are also part of this heritage, as are natural sites, parks and gardens of artistic or anthropological importance.

Without prejudice to the powers of the public authorities, the central government of Spain is duty-bound and has the essential authority, as established in articles 46 and 44, 149.1.1 and 149.2 of the Spanish Constitution, to ensure the conservation of Spanish Historic Heritage and to promote its enrichment and to foster and encourage access for citizens to the assets that make up this heritage.

In addition, the administrative division of Spain into autonomous communities means the governments of these communities are granted powers related to culture and, without prejudice to the duties and authority described in the paragraph above, historical, artistic, monumental, architectural, archaeological and scientific heritage.

As a result, both central government and the autonomous communities are responsible for the preservation and conservation of heritage.

All the autonomous communities have used their powers to draw up a body of legislation regulating archaeological interventions and museums, while others, including Catalonia, have fully embraced their powers and have drawn up laws on heritage.

Autonomous community legislation

Catalonia

Law 9/1993 of 30 September 1993 on Catalan Cultural Heritage, enacted by the Parliament of Catalonia

This Law, the precedent for which was the Law of 3 July 1934 on the conservation of the historical, artistic and scientific heritage of Catalonia, must be regarded as the framework surrounding the various laws for each specific sector of heritage.

The Law is founded on a broad concept of the cultural heritage of Catalonia that encompasses movable, immovable and intangible heritage, be it publicly or privately owned, and expressions of traditional and popular culture.

Three categories of protection have been established and apply equally to movable assets, immovable assets and intangible heritage: cultural assets of national interest, listed assets and other assets that fall within the broad concept of cultural heritage defined by article 1 of the Law.

In accordance with the power recognised by the Constitutional Court in its Decision 17/1991, the Government of Catalonia is empowered to declare cultural assets of national interest, the highest category of protection, which corresponds to that of the assets of cultural interest defined by the aforementioned Law on Spanish Historic Heritage.

The Law establishes a second sphere of protection for cultural heritage assets of lesser importance, listed assets, which are protected and monitored by means of instruments implemented in the main by municipalities.

Heritage included in this sphere of protection is termed a cultural asset of local interest. With regard to immovable assets of national interest, the Law establishes various forms of protection depending on the nature of the asset. Immovable assets of local interest can be listed within the framework of this Law. In addition, the mechanisms for their protection under urban legislation are also cited.

Noteworthy among the measures to promote and raise awareness of this heritage is the establishment by the Government of Catalonia of the "cultural one per cent", the creation of the Inventory of Catalan Cultural Heritage and the precepts on managing monuments in such a way as to enable the public to visit them. The Law does not dwell on the goals of protecting and conserving cultural heritage but instead aims to encourage awareness of this heritage as a logical consequence of gradually achieving these aims. Article 8.2 of the Statute of Autonomy, whereby the Government of Catalonia is duty-bound to promote citizens' participation in culture, is thus complied with.

The Law also establishes the requirement for professional skills and qualifications for certain types of action and intervention in order to raise the level of protection for heritage assets.

The Law also lays down the system of sanctions, classifying infractions and their corresponding penalties, and determines the bodies empowered to impose these sanctions. In addition, the Law establishes preventive and additional measures.

The Law also lays down the system of sanctions, classifying infractions and their corresponding penalties, and determines the bodies empowered to impose these sanctions. In addition, the Law establishes preventive and additional measures.

Lastly, the Cultural Heritage Advisory Council is set up as a consultative body of the public authorities on matters relating to heritage in order to ensure that the objectives laid down by the Law are achieved.

- Municipal
- Metropolitan General Plan on Urban Planning (PGOM)
- By laws on Protecting the Historical and Artistic Architectural Heritage of the City of Barcelona
- Planning Regulations in the Special Plan on Protecting the Architectural Heritage of the city of Barcelona (the Eixample; Sarrià-Sant Gervasi ; Les Corts; Gràcia)

Barcelona and the municipalities in its area of influence between them form the metropolitan region.

With regard to urban planning, this means that laws are required that will provide for the planning of this entire metropolitan region, and this is fundamentally the purpose of the Metropolitan General Plan on Urban Planning (PGOM) approved by the Provincial Urban Planning Committee on 14 July 1976 and subsequently modified and updated in 2001.

The PGOM is the legal framework for the municipal byelaws created by town and city councils. Despite the fact that protecting architectural heritage within the area it covers is not one of the main functions of the PGOM, it includes the mechanisms to do so in articles 20, 75, 147-150 and 151-160.

Barcelona City Council approved its Byelaws on Protecting the Historical and Artistic Architectural Heritage of the City of Barcelona in 1979 and the revision of the Municipal Catalogue in May 2000. Before describing the functioning and composition of these Byelaws and the Catalogue, which, as one might imagine, are complex, given that Barcelona is a capital city with a long history and a wealth of heritage, we wish to underline the fact that the Catalogue abides by and incorporates Law 9/1993 on Catalan Cultural Heritage.

Among other things, the Byelaws establish four categories of protection (A, B, C and D). The highest of these is category A, which applies to Cultural Assets of National Interest, as established by Law 9/1993 on Catalan Cultural Heritage. These assets are, therefore, automatically accorded the highest category in the Municipal Catalogue.

The PGOM establishes a number of urban planning zones. These, together with the division of the city of Barcelona into districts, form the basis for the special plans drawn up by Barcelona City Council to manage its heritage. These plans include a series of specific regulations and take into account the characteristics of the buildings concerned.

Palau Güell is situated in Ciutat Vella, a district in the city with its own special plan. The contents of this plan would be somewhat complex to summarise and, given its length, inappropriate within the context of this application dossier.

Articles 31 (4,5) and 32 (4,5) of the special plan are important to note, however, as they describe and specify the protection to be given to buildings' surroundings.

Other related legislation

Law 13/2002 of 21 June 2002 on Tourism in Catalonia

The Law on Tourism in Catalonia was introduced in response to the new values that prompted the promotion and management of tourism, all of which were discussed at the Catalan Tourism Congress held in Tarragona in February 2001. This Law includes the international and Community guidelines and directives on the subject. The Law also takes into account the economic opportunities and impact of an economic activity of this nature on the progress and social advancement of the country. However, in accordance with the principle of sustainable development, it does not disregard the duty to safeguard the natural, historical, cultural and environmental importance of the resources that make this activity possible.
